

ABSTRACT

A device for wireless transmission of a deployment signal. The device includes two processors on both the primary side and the secondary side, which exchange data with one 5 another. A high degree of redundancy is thereby achieved. The wireless transmission is preferably carried out as inductive transmission.